Executive Board Appoints Robert Corona as New IBEW 11 Business Manager

Former BM Joël Barton steps down effective immediately

By Grant Slater

Robert Corona has taken the reins of IBEW Local 11 after Joël Barton submitted his resignation to the Local's Executive Board in a Special Called Meeting on Thursday, December 14.

The board voted to appoint Corona to take control of the Local's day-to-day operations as Business Manager and Financial Secretary from Barton, who has served in those positions since his election in June 2018.

After the vote, Corona was immediately sworn in by Board Chairman John Harriel in a ceremony witnessed by IBEW International Representative Billy Powell.

Corona will lead the organization through elections in June 2024 when membership will vote on candidates to fill the position. He is only the third Business Manager to helm IBEW 11 in the 21st century and the first person of color to hold the position.

"I am humbled. I'm honored," Corona told members of IBEW 11's senior and clerical staff at a luncheon the day after his appointment. "I've had the privilege to work under two different Business Managers. And I've seen both styles

BUSINESS MANAGER'S MESSAGE

By Robert Corona

New Year. New Leadership. New Vision.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of IBEW 11, I am honored and humbled to serve as your new Business Manager and Financial Secretary. Thank you for entrusting me with this position.

I don't take this duty lightly, because I know I am working on behalf of more than just the IBEW 11 membership. Each one of our more than 9,000 electricians has a family that relies on them. Taking responsibility for the well-being of everyone that loves an IBEW 11 member is part of what I do now, and I promise you that I will strive to live up to that high bar.

During my decades in the leadership of this Local I've been blessed to work with, and learn from, two Business Managers, first under Brother Marvin Kropke, as an Organizer and Business Agent, and then under Brother Joel Barton, as his Senior Assistant Business Manager and Director of Organizing.

In my first week as Business Manager, I've been thinking a lot more about a piece of advice Marvin gave me years and years ago. He said, 'Robert, you can't just take the praise. You've got to take the arrows also at times.'

I'm ready to take arrows for our membership. I take this job on because I love this Local. I love what it has provided for me and my family, and I will do everything in my power to make sure that the decisions made on behalf of you, the members, are in your best interest. Because it means as much to my family as it does to yours.

When I arrived home on the day of my swearing in, my son called out to me. "Congratulations, Pops." He paused a moment and said, "Hey, you know you're the first Latino to hold that position."

His noticing that meant a lot to me as a father. I'm proud to be the first Latino Business Manager of one of the biggest union Locals in the country.

It's something I never could have imagined when I set off on my path as a journeyman wireman electrician 32 years ago. In that time, I've held nearly every position one can hold in our Local, from Apprentice Instructor to jobsite General Foreman. For years now, I've represented our union to the outside world on important boards and committees. My deep experience has prepared me to lead IBEW Local 11 into the future.

Lastly, I want to thank Brother Joel Barton for his decades of service, and especially for his leadership at the top of IBEW 11 over the past five and half years. We've been talking about and preparing for this transition for a long time; I am proud of all that we accomplished together.

At the IBEW, we are builders, and as I step into this position, it's my duty to build on the shoulders of all the previous leaders who have ever held this position. I will take the best of what each previous leader had to offer and keep building our union, higher, stronger, better.

As your new Business Manager, it's my pleasure to wish you Happy Holidays, and I'm excited for IBEW Local 11 to start a new year with new leadership and a new vision.

*In Solidarity,
Robert Corona
Business Manager/Financial Secretary*

I take this job on because I love this Local. I love what it has provided for me and my family, and I will do everything in my power to make sure that the decisions made on behalf of you, the members, are in your best interest.

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Institutions are Lasting

Brothers and Sisters, I've been a proud IBEW 11 member for 43 years. I've been in and out of leadership positions for the past 33 years. I've seen a lot of change in those years. Technology, leadership, rules and regulations, elected politicians, COVID and more. But the one thing that remains the same is the IBEW. The organization.

During my tenure, the IBEW International has had five different Presidents. During my time, our own IBEW 11 has had six different Business Managers. But we have remained a political powerhouse throughout, and in fact, have grown our reputation with each successive leader.

And that is because we have built something solid, something great, something lasting. IBEW strong!

I am here to tell you that the new leadership of IBEW 11 is experienced. Collectively, we have over 100 years with this organization under our belt. You can rest assured that we will be here during this transition, just like we have with every other leadership transition. The ship is steady.

Robert Corona has over 30 years of experience in the IBEW. He has been involved at every level of our organization and is involved in countless commissions, workshops, committees and lobbying efforts. His transition to Business Manager will reap many rewards for our membership.

As members, you can rest assured that IBEW 11 will only continue to grow stronger because of you, our members. We have the best, most experienced membership and staff of any local union in California. I believe in us.

Happy Holidays to all.

In Solidarity,
Gaylord R. "Rusty" Roten

A MESSAGE FROM THE FORMER BUSINESS MANAGER

A Fond Farewell

Holiday greetings, Sisters and Brothers! This will be my last correspondence to you. I have submitted my resignation to the Executive Board, and they have elected to appoint Robert Corona as Business Manager and Financial Secretary for the remainder of my term.

Robert takes over for me with a vast amount of knowledge of the workings of IBEW Local 11 and is the best choice to continue to lead the way forward. He has my full support, and I hope you will all help to assist him in fulfilling his new obligations.

I have been honored and privileged to serve the members of Local 11 for the last 25 years. I started out as a volunteer on the Executive and Welfare Committees for District 2. I was later appointed to the Local Union Executive Board and then elected as both your Vice President and President. For the last five and a half years, I've been honored to serve as your Business Manager and Financial Secretary.

I look forward to continuing as an adviser to Robert for a few months to ensure there is no loss of service to the members. Again, it has been my pleasure to serve the members of Local 11, and I look forward to the next chapter in my life.

Fraternally,
Joël Barton

On Tuesday, Dec. 19, new Business Manager Robert Corona met with CA Assembly Speaker Robert Rivas to discuss upcoming legislation in the year ahead that will benefit IBEW 11 members.

block between Wilshire Avenue and Sixth Street and operates under a Project Labor Agreement are engines of economic stability and growth for IBEW members, both new and old.

Brett Moss, the Business Agent for the northern part of District 1, said that because the Opus Towers residential project isn't publicly funded, the contract offers the developers some flexibility to bring on a diverse array of workers with different skillsets and levels of experience.

One of those workers is apprentice Hakob Hakobyan, who goes by Jack on the job. Right out of college, he first went to work in a pharmacy, pushing pills and doing paperwork as a low-level employee.

"I hated it," said Hakobyan. "I didn't see myself going far. The stress and the workload at the pharmacy was crazy."

Then, earlier this year, a family friend in the construction industry suggested he apply to become a union electrician – a move he had been eyeing for several years. Hakobyan put in his two weeks' notice at his "boring" pharmaceutical office job and never looked back.

That family friend was Haik Turdjian, a general superintendent for Conti Electric, who was running work on the residential Opus condominium project. That's where Hakobyan ended up working in August as an apprentice.

"Ever since, it's been a smooth ride," Hakobyan said. "It's amazing. I work with four to five different journeymen. All of them came up with different people as they journeyed through their apprenticeship, and they all have different skills to teach me."

At 25 years old, Hakobyan will be able to make more as an electrical worker than he would have in the pharmaceutical industry after years of schooling and a pile of student debt, he said.

"I wish I had started sooner, but better late than never," he said.

The towers broke ground in April 2021 and started to climb toward the sky in May 2022. Turdjian, the general superintendent, said that more than 100,000 man hours have flowed into wiring up the towers' 428 units, two skydecks and associated amenities.

In addition to housing, Opus will also feature a dog park, fitness centers, a club room, co-working spaces, a game room, a private screening room, and an indoor golf range.

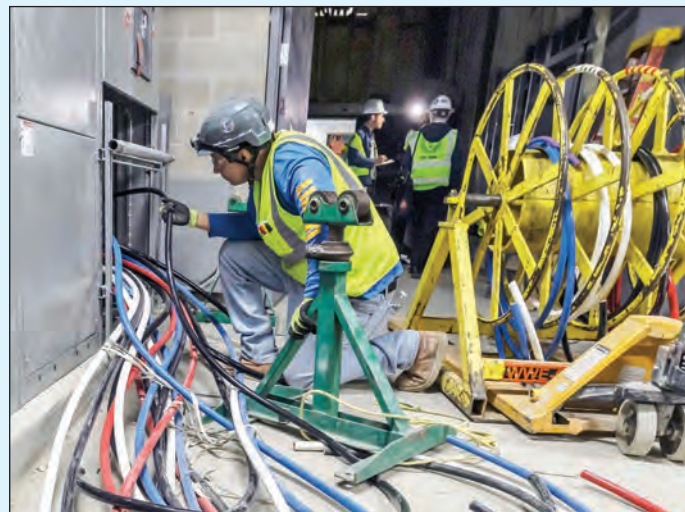

The two towers, one 14 stories and the other 22, have provided consistent work for more than 50 IBEW 11 electricians, Turdjian said.

Among those 50 electricians are nine CWs, or craft workers, who have entered the union and started to climb the ranks of IBEW 11 by wiring up and trimming parts of these towers.

Just a few years ago, Raul Espinoza Armenta worked in construction, hanging around Home Depot, hoping that work for the day would drive into the parking lot.

He applied to become a union electrician, but the beginning of the coronavirus pandemic delayed his entry, and he signed up for a two-year stint in the Army Reserve. Now, he balances his reserve duties with his job as an Inside Wireman Apprentice on the Koreatown towers project.

all, because, I'm an ESL," said Espinoza Armenta. "I like the program, the way of the union. I like the benefits they have."

Espinoza Armenta put in more than 1,200 hours on the project, passed his apprenticeship exam, and moved up from the lowest level of CW.

"He was out here for eight months and proved his work ethic," said Moss, the District 1 Business Agent. "He showed up every day. The company saw that in him and sponsored him into the apprenticeship program."

New workers like Espinoza Armenta rely on practical knowledge they gain in the classroom, along with experience on the job site from veterans like Marco Molina, an Inside Journeyman Wireman who has been with IBEW Local 11 for almost 25 years.

"Working with the younger guys, and trying to show them what you've learned along the way is satisfying," Molino said. "You have to be very patient, which I didn't know how to do in the past. But now that I'm older, it feels good to hand over what I've learned. You know, I can't take it with me."

Now Molino is just a couple of years from a retirement that has been made possible by his work as a union electrician. It's also allowed him to buy a house, decent cars, and braces for his kids.

That's a success story, and that's what the union is all about.

IBEW 11 Women Find Fellowship in Nation's Capital

In the crisp early December air, chants filled the streets of Washington, D.C., as hundreds upon hundreds of women poured out of the Tradeswomen Build Nations Conference, the largest gathering of women from the trades in history.

Heads turned; horns honked. The marchers carried banners, chanted union slogans and held their phones high to capture this rare moment.

Danielle Lewis, a third-year inside wireman apprentice from IBEW 11, took in the scene as well as the feeling of being seen.

"A lot of times we go unseen in these kinds of roles," Lewis said. "We're just there to keep our heads down and work. So, getting the opportunity to raise your head and hold it high and say, 'Hey, I'm a woman in the union. I'm kicking ass.' It's kind of awesome."

Each year, North America's Building Trades Unions, or NABTU, hosts the Tradeswomen Build Nations Conference. The event began in 2002 as the Women Build California conference and grew over time to include the whole country, said Diana Limon, IBEW 11's Director of Women Recruitment and Support.

This year was the biggest event ever with 4,000 women traveling from across the continent, including 40 members of IBEW Local 11.

"It's very difficult to describe the energy in the room among tradeswomen," Limon said. "It's electrifying. The camaraderie is like nothing else."

Lewis, the third-year apprentice, was named NABTU's Tradeswomen Heroes Award winner for September 2023 for her contributions to IBEW Local 11. She currently works on the Metro Purple Line Extension project, where she is the only woman on site.

"We tend to think this is it for us, and it's the same thing for everybody, but getting the opportunity to go to the Tradeswomen Build Nations Conference opened up my eyes," she said.

This is her second year attending the conference, and it's an extension of the fellowship she experiences working with committees within Local 11, like the Solidarity Committee for female members and the Reaching out to Next-Gen Electrical Workers, or RENEW, committee.

In Washington, D.C., the IBEW members toured the International's headquarters and had the chance to meet International President Kenneth Cooper and Secretary-Treasurer Paul Nobles. Former House Speaker Nancy Pelosi addressed the plenary and visited the Tradeswomen leaders in a small, private session and told attendees, "Don't agonize; organize."

The most important thing, she said, is ensuring that Democrats find success in 2024 elections to continue the policies of the most union friendly administration in history.

"You feel optimistic. You feel energized, and it kind of makes you ready to face the rest of the year, Lewis said. "You fill your cup up again at this conference and then go back into the world."

Taylor Kourkos, a Sound and Communications Journeyman, also attended the conference for the second time and said the event was "life changing."

Kourkos took up being an electrician after her father, who was also an IBEW member, and then dove into a world dominated by males.

"I'm a girl's girl," Kourkos said. "I was always the only girl on the job, and it was really rough. I didn't have anyone to talk to because none of my girlfriends were electricians."

Kourkos found female mentors within IBEW 11, but the national conference really opened up her world. At this year's conference, she was one of four attendees selected for a new program: Connect to Success: Sister-to-Sister Mentorship. In this program, she's paired with a female electrician with decades of experience, a permanent connection back to the NABTU conference.

"The energy was insane, and I learned so much about how the union has changed for women over the years and how it has become a better place and a safer space," Kourkos said.

Usually, she would be nervous to be selected for a breakout group with a small number of influential electricians, but there in DC, she felt calm and inspired.

"I usually feel small on the job because I'm the only woman, but being in a room full of other tradeswomen made me feel huge," she said.

The Tradeswomen Build Nations conference will be held next year in New Orleans.

Happy Holidays to everyone and to your families. I wish you all a great and safe New Year.

Thank you to the more than 300 brothers, sisters and their families that attended the annual District 2 Holiday Meeting. It was a great turnout and, as always, thank you to all the volunteers who helped.

The work picture is a little slow as is typical this time of year. Some jobs to keep an eye out for are the Harbor UCLA project with Rosendin/Meadows JV, Harbor College Southeast Hall with CSI and another battery storage facility at AES in Long Beach with Sargent Electric.

I'd like to say thank you to Joël Barton for his many years of service to Local 11 and wish him the best in his retirement.

Welcome Robert Corona as the new Business Manager! I know he will do a great job for our Local.

Happy New Year Brothers and Sisters!

I hope everyone will have a happy holiday and be able to spend quality time with your families.

Our annual holiday party, in December, was a huge success, attended by many members and their families. Heather made sure that there were many fun activities for all the kids in attendance. The food was great and was enjoyed by all.

This year's work picture will be better than last year with many projects getting ready to break all over Local 11! One job I have been looking forward to is the 14-terminal replacement at Burbank Airport. Temporary power will begin sometime around the middle of February.

Hopefully by the time this is being read, Mortensen's 80 mega watt battery storage facility will be in full construction mode.

LAUSD and LACCD projects will continue to keep many of our members employed.

I would like to wish everyone a Happy and Healthy New Year!

Happy Holidays Brothers and Sisters. The year is coming to an end, we can finally look back and reflect on 2023. It's amazing how time flies by so fast. Historically, the construction industry slows down during this time of year, but the New Year is coming with new projects and new opportunities. District 6 still has ongoing projects with Unison, CSI, Baker, Big Bear Electric, Daniels Electric, Mass Electric and a few more slowly dispatching. So, keep up with certs and your state licensing so you don't miss a job call closer to home. A reminder that our District 6 meeting has been changed from the fourth Wednesday of every month to second Thursday of the month starting on January 11, 2024. Also, I hope to see you all at our District 6 holiday party on December 27th at 5 p.m.

As many of our members know, I have been working with the Department of Industrial Relations (DIR) regarding delays in the processing of our members applications for both new and renewal state certifications and the scheduling of exams. While the DIR continues to face a worker shortage, I am here to help facilitate the process when roadblocks arise.

According to the department, exam applications are processed within 30 days, and it takes 24 hours for this info to transmit to our testing vendor, PSI. After that, exams are scheduled, and the onus is on the applicants. If you receive notification that you can schedule your exam and it is not available in PSI within a week, please contact me.

If you have applied and have not heard back from the DIR for a few months, please contact me at martinez@ibew11.org. In all instances I will need copies of your transmittals to the DIR, your reference number and driver's license number.

Remember, it's your responsibility to make sure your trainee card is valid. So, don't wait until the last minute to renew it. I want to reiterate that you must go to school. If you miss school, your ET card could be in jeopardy. The State of California will not reissue an ET card if you are not going to school and progressing. It's important to remember that you must sign the book every day to take a job call. Go to the nearest dispatch hall to you by 7:30 a.m.

It is an honor to represent you. As always, contact me should you need any assistance. Watch out for one another and please be safe.

Conduit isn't 'PIPE'. Laborers and other crafts often refer to electrical conduit on transportation projects as 'PIPE.' Electrical work done by someone other than an electrical worker jeopardizes our careers and the future of our industry. It's crucial to firmly convey throughout the trades that electrical work should solely be performed by trained electrical professionals. Whether it's a state highway, city street, airport runway, bridge or tunnel, transportation projects are going on everywhere. The current workload combined with upcoming projects promise a lot of opportunity for IBEW workers. I'm excited to announce that we've begun the process of branding the ITS unit with a new, transportation-specific logo. Shirts and other related items will soon be accessible.

Hello. I hope this finds you and yours well. I want to wish all a happy holiday season.

Kinkisharyo is working hard on the Metro refurbishing contract with the P2550 trains. We are working hard, trying to find more contracts in their future and hoping to hear more on the Olympic train contract in the New Year.

Unfortunately, we were notified that Covanta will not be renewing their contract with the City of Long Beach. We will be meeting with the company to negotiate a severance package for our members. I will have more info in the coming weeks.

With EAA, we have been working hard on an organizing campaign to get all the City Council aides represented. This will bring more than 350 new members into EAA membership.

Thank you for allowing me to serve this great local.

Any questions or concerns about Manufacturing or Industrial please contact me.

REFINERIES

Work in our refineries has slowed down in the fourth quarter. Many of our refinery contractors are now preparing for work which is scheduled to pick up in January 2024.

We are looking for members of all classifications to work in the refineries this upcoming year. Most all refineries will need journeymen, both Inside Wiremen and Sound and Communication workers, along with apprentices in each of the classifications. Our refinery contractors will also be hiring certified instrumentation technicians.

Most all of our refineries are in the process of converting many of their crude oil processing units into units which produce clean burning fuels. The certifications needed for our refineries are: RSO 20, TWIC, OSHA 30, NFPA70E, and Process Instrumentation level A and level B.

Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays to all! We have reached the tail end of the year, and it has been a very active and motivating year for the future. I have been participating in many events to help out communities at risk. I appreciate all the volunteers and hard work that is put into helping others and serving people. For that is what true leadership is about, a selfless heart to help out the less fortunate in action and not only words. I humbly thank you all who do so. I will leave you all with blessings to you this year into the next. Feliz Navidad and God Bless.

ORGANIZING REPORTS

Ruben Mendoza

Season's Greetings Sisters and Brothers!

This past November, I worked alongside other staff members and Labor Community Services to box food for the needy and held a food drive at the ETI before Thanksgiving. We had a lot of volunteers from different unions throughout the county, along with IBEW members. We were able to hand a food box and a turkey to over 1000 families.

As I reflect on 2023, I am amazed at the sisterhood and brotherhood throughout our union when it comes time to help those in need. There is a saying in Spanish: "Hoy por ti, mañana por mi." This translates as: "Today for you, tomorrow for me." Let's continue to help those in need year round.

Looking forward to a prosperous New Year.

DISTRICT 6

Tommy Zielomski

Greetings and Happy Holidays from District 6. As the year comes to an end, I wanted to reflect on some of the positive things that have happened to the organized labor movement in 2023.

A recent Gallup poll finds that about 70 percent of Americans approve of unions, the highest since 1965 and well up from the 48 percent low from 2009.

2023 was and is known as the Hot Labor Summer, because many workers from actors to Starbucks and fast food workers are trying to unionize their workplace or have gone on strike for better pay and conditions.

Local 11 staff and members have supported local unions who have been on strike. We have stood in solidarity and marched alongside these striking workers. Thankfully, most of the unions who were fighting for better contracts have received major wins in terms of pay, benefits, and working conditions. In the labor movement, a win for one is a win for all.

CONTRACTORS

Mario Barragan

It has been a good year here in the organizing and business development team. We have increased our contractor base and that will generate more work for our members. Also, there will be several more Project Labor Agreements in the San Gabriel Valley in the first quarter of next year. This year has seen some positive gains in the addition of new contractors and more project labor agreements. Like always, it is a pleasure and an honor to serve our members of IBEW Local 11. Wish you and your family a Merry Christmas and a very prosperous New Year.

LEADERSHIP CHANGE

and I hope to bring the best of what both of them had."

Barton succeeded Business Manager Marvin Kropke in 2018.

Barton came out of retirement to lead the Local through the throes of an international pandemic. In 2018, after his election, Barton appointed Corona as his deputy and Corona has served in that capacity as Senior Assistant Business Manager and Director of Organizing throughout Barton's tenure.

"It's been one heck of a roll," Barton said. "I couldn't have turned the Local over to a better person. Robert Corona is going to do a great job. I've known him a long time. 20 years ago, he was my boss. Then it worked out that I was his boss. And now he's my boss again."

The move had been under discussion for many months and Barton decided that now was the time to do it.

John Harriel, the chairman of IBEW 11's Executive Board, supports the changing of the guard. He has known and worked with Corona for many years and has great respect for his leadership ability.

Harriel met Corona in the very first days of his apprenticeship, when Corona taught him as a first-year instructor in a class that also included Corona's brother Luis.

Harriel said Barton called a Special Called Meeting of the Executive Board on Thursday at 5 p.m. At that meeting Barton resigned with one condition: that Corona be named his successor.

The IBEW Local 11 Executive board after Robert Corona was sworn in on Thursday, Dec. 14.

"Joël deserves a lot of respect for giving Robert, not only the reins to being a Business Manager, but also giving him an opportunity to build his team for 2024 for the election."

Robert Corona joined IBEW Local 11 in 1991 after serving four years in the Air Force and working for two years as a shop steward in the refineries before he applied for the apprenticeship as an Inside Wireman electrician. He moved into his role as an Organizer with IBEW 11 in 1998.

"In my 32 years of service and membership, I have performed in many roles and capacities," Corona said. "I am humbled and honored to take on this new duty and responsibility and will do so with all the moral earnestness and passion that you, the membership, deserve."

EWMC Brings Holiday Cheer to Skid Row Residents

Members of the Electrical Workers Minority Caucus traveled to the heart of Skid Row to bring a holiday smile and much-needed aid on Saturday, Dec. 9.

Fourteen IBEW electricians and EWMC members met downtown for the EWMC Day of Service and tended to a long line of hundreds of the unhoused and underprivileged. They passed out clothes donated by IBEW 11 members, personal hygiene kits and toilet paper.

The next EWMC meeting is scheduled for January 20, 2024.
